

Smartricity Asia Congress 2010(Post Event Report)

28th-30th September 2010

Intercontinental Hotel Pudong Shanghai China

Smart grid technology really takes off in Asia in 2010 as a number of governments have pledged to spend billions of dollars on developing the technology and infrastructure needed to upgrade their antiquated electrical grid systems.

Japan, South Korea and China are investing about US$9 billion this year in infrastructure and IT to make electricity networks smarter, among them, China is outpacing the US as it alone are planning to spend US$7 billion in the sector this year, which are expected to create numerous growth opportunities for niche technology firms.

Meanwhile, the world-wide Smart Grid Revolution is becoming “Disruptive” as big changes and innovations in business models, information technology systems and energy sources are creating new norm for utility production, transmission and distribution.

Under the theme of “Exploring the Diversity and Convergency of Asia’ s Future”,SMARTricity Asia Congress has held on 28th-30th ,September in Shanghai ,China.Nearly 250 delegates from Asian governments, power generators, operator, utilities and distribution companies attended this event,and discussed the efficiency and reliability of smart grid in Aisa..
